Washington Camp Ground

Middlebrook Encampment

During the summer of 1777 and again in the winter of 1778-1779, General George Washington and his troops of the Continental Army, encamped in the Watchung Mountains, just north of Bound Brook.

On June 14, 1777, the Continental Congress, meeting in Philadelphia, adopted the 13 Stars and Stripes flag as America's colors, replacing the Grand Union flag existing since January 2,1775.

Betsy Ross, among other seamstresses, is credited with having sewn this flag based upon a design submitted to Congress by Francis Hopkinson, a delegate to the Congress from New Jersey, who possessed knowledge of heraldry.

The flag attributed to Hopkinson has thirteen stripes and thirteen stars in five rows of 3-2-3-2-3 on a blue field. While the flag resolution is silent on the star arrangement, some flags were made with five pointed stars, while others had six or more points. The flag flying over the Camp Ground today has six pointed stars.

Because the Continental Army was encamped in the Middlebrook area on June 14 and several successive weeks in 1777, this flag is now flown at Middlebrook, both day and night, by special permission of a formal resolution of the United States Congress.

History of the Washington Camp Ground Association

The Washington Camp Ground Association, formed in 1894, owns a portion of the land Washington used for his Middlebrook encampments – a 19.3-acre plot preserved through the generosity and foresight of the Honorable George LaMonte. The Association is dedicated to preserving this land for educational and memorial purposes and to commemorate the struggle of the colonists for freedom and independence in the American Revolution. Every 4th of July, patriotic exercises are conducted at the Camp Ground, featuring a reading of the Declaration of Independence.

It will be 240 years since George Washington and his Army made their camp on the hills north of Bound Brook. The men of the Continental Army in the winter of 1778-79 were there again. Since that time the residents of the Bound Brook and the surrounding municipalities have celebrated the 4th of July and have made the old camp ground the central attraction and the gathering place. On Washington's Birthday there also has been a ceremony of some importance, indoors of course, and the fact that the Revolutionary Army had been here is stressed in the gatherings.

For centuries, the camp ground was used as a picnic park on Independence Day. There was speechmaking and the reading of the Declaration of Independence. About 1885 a regular program was adopted and a guest speaker selected for the oration. In 1889 we have a record that the Rev. H.B. MacCauley, pastor of the Presbyterian Church in Bound Brook, was the speaker for the Fourth of July celebration.

In 1889 the patriotic residents decided to organize a society to look after these regular observances of Independence Day. George La Monte, father of George M. La Monte, was behind the effort. He had bought the acreage in which the camp ground is located. It had been cleared to an extent, and a small pavilion was erected. The organization was known as the Washington Camp Ground Association and the first record of its meetings was set down in a minute book on February 22, 1894.

When Washington's men came to Bound Brook and selected the side of the hill for their camp they found it fairly thickly covered with woods. On the cleared spots they set up their tents. But it was not long before they cut most of the trees and with them built huts to replace the tents to protect themselves in the severe weather of the winter of 1778-9. When some visitors looked over the old camp grounds in 1850 there were still remaining the chimneys of many of these huts built by the soldiers. In 1894, there was possibly one chimney left; all the balance had been removed and had gone into the foundations of the buildings that had been erected in Bound Brook. When Mr. La Monte purchased the property, few traces of the former habitations of the Revolutionary soldiers remained. The Camp Ground Association immediately set about to improve the property and save what was left of the relics.

In the 1897 meeting of the association, a small plaza at the end of Main street was selected as the most suitable location for the monument in the Battle of Bound Brook. This spot was close to where General Lincoln's headquarters stood in the Spring of 1777, later replaced by the garage and show rooms of the Bolmer Motor Company.

As set down in the original Association constitution, the mission "was to cultivate a spirit of patriotism, to maintain a memorial to General Washington and the Continental Army while encamped in tour county during the Spring of 1777 and the Winter of 1778-9, and for the collecting of objects of interest, documents and relics connected with the War of the Revolution."

At the Fourth of July celebration in 1907, there appeared the first automobile section to the parade in Bound Brook. The program shows that decorated machines appeared in the procession. As reported in the "Chronicle," It was a very fine and memorable affair. It was one of the best celebrations that the association had undertaken in "all our yesterdays." Mayor Brokaw rode in his carriage behind two prancing steeds to the front of the Middlebrook Country Club, where he and Mrs. Brokaw alighted and joined Mayor Eugene D. La Tourette, of South Bound Brook. As the school children came before the heads of the twin boroughs they stopped and sang lustily two verses of the Star-Spangled Banner.

Fully two thousand followed the parade to the Camp grounds where the patriotic exercises were held.

It is clear that the Washington Camp Ground Association has contributed mightily to preserving the Revolutionary War history of Bound Brook and the surrounding communities. It will continue to do so with the help of all citizens who desire to perpetuate the works of the Association.

Please join us on February 21st to celebrate the history of George Washington and our brave soldiers who were responsible for the birth of our country. Please join our Association to help preserve the history of our Camp Ground.

Watchung Hills Ends Bound Brook's Six-Year Hold On Somerset County Wrestling Title

Bound Brook's Joe Casey in the 160-pound final Somerset County Wrestling Tournament Hillsborough High School. 1/13/2018

It took dominating performance to end Bound Brook domination at the Somerset County Tournament.

Watchung Hills, ranked No. 13 in the latest NJ.com Wrestling Top 20, placed 11 wrestlers in the top three, accumulated 218.5 team points and snapped Bound Brook's extraordinary run of six-straight county titles.

Bound Brook received first-place efforts from Xavier Pena (120), Joe Casey (160) and David Ugalde (195). Casey, who is still rounding into form since returning from knee surgery, was a 3-2 winner over Kevin Faulkner of Hillsborough.

Tough Start

The Crusader wrestling team has had a tough start to the season. But with five of their best starters beginning the season on the bench, that should be no surprise. As of the date of this writing (Jan 15th), the Crusaders have a record of 6-5 and are looking forward to an improving season.

First All-Girl, Varsity Wrestling Bout In N.J. History

On Friday, December 29th, while Bound Brook was winning the team competition 48-30, the first all-girl wrestling match in New Jersey history took place between BBHS Wrestler Diatou Sane and Wallkill Valley Wrestler Samantha Larsen.

The changes in New Jersey wrestling mirror those across the nation. While more evolutionary than revolutionary, there is growing sentiment that with shrinking male participation numbers at nearly every program in the state, there is a place for girls bold and gritty enough to try.

Larsen, is an eight-time New Jersey female state champion and a five-time All-American, pinned Diatou Sane of Bound Brook in 1:12 at 113 pounds, scoring the fall with legs in and a power half nelson. Larsen has been wrestling – both boys and girls – since age six.

Bound Brook Wrestling Walton and Lewis Shine In College

College is a lot different than the halls of old BBHS, but the wrestling coaches always hope the lessons learned in the room will translate to the classroom and wrestling mats in college. Recently Bound Brook has been very fortunate with that as we've had multiple wrestlers reach the round of twelve at the DI NCAA's, a two-time D3 All American, a 4x NCWA All American and seven NWCA Academic All Americans. Well it looks like Mekhi Lewis and George Walton are continuing that trend as they both had outstanding first semesters in the classroom and equally impressive efforts on the mat in their red-shirt seasons. In fact, all of Bound Brook's college wrestlers are making nice gains this first half of the season.

First up is George Walton, whose latest triumph came at the Lock Haven Class where he won the 184 Lbs. division by defeating his team's starter in the finals. He was 3-0 on the day and is now 12-3 this season. However, the greatest accomplishment by George this semester was his being named the November Scholar Athlete of the Month at Old Dominion. Great, great job George.

Second up is his long-time teammate Mekhi Lewis who has already made a lot of people sit up and take notice as he placed fourth in the Southern Scuffle at 165 Lbs. His two losses coming on late takedowns to the eighth ranked wrestler in the country Chance Marstellar of Lock Haven. Mekhi has beaten ranked wrestlers this season, NCAA qualifiers this season and many other comers on his way to a 19-2 record. But best of all for Mek was his awesome 3.1 GPA in his first semester at Virginia Tech!

Another wrestler rounding in to form is Andrew Gombas who is a junior at University of Scranton and after a slow start recently placed second at the RIT Open. He is getting better and better every day and he will be a NWCA Academic All American someday.

Another freshman having a great redshirt campaign is Rob Cleary who has two finals appearances for Rutgers so far this season at the East Stroudsburg Open and Lock Haven Mat Town Tournament. He even went up a weight and finished 6th at the Wilkes Tournament. He is 9-4 in his redshirt season.

Josh Ugalde is still at it at Maryland and had a tough Midlands going 2-2, but he knows what he's got to fix so look for him to improve as the season matures.

These wrestlers are the flagships of the Bound Brook Wrestling program and we are so proud that they choose to compete in wrestling in college, believe me the season is long and it's not easy, but these guys are all getting it done like the wrestlers before them. In fact, here's a little list of some of our recent college grads who wrestled in college, it's all about getting that sheepskin!

- Rob Murray - Stevens Institute of Technology (NWCA Academic All American)
- Zach Vatalare - University of Michigan (4x NCWA All American and Academic All American)
- Tyler Awtry -Virginia Tech
- Andrew Camplatanno - Rutgers University (NCAA Round of 12)
- Gabe Gleason - New York University (NWCA Academic All American)
- Nestor Taffur - Boston University (NCAA Round of 12/NWCA Academic All American)
- Nick Murry - Virginia Tech (Licensed Civil Engineer)
- Jesse Harrington - Delaware Valley College (2x NCAA All American)
- Andrew Flanagan - Harvard (NCAA Round of 12)
- David Shubick - Washington and Lee (NCAA Round of 12)
- Rich Jannuzzi - Rutgers University (Big League Accountant)

The Society of Mayflower Descendants in NJ Donate Historical Reference Collection to Bound Brook Memorial Library

SMD-NJ Governor John E. "Jack" Idenden, Jr.; County Library Administrator Brian Auger; SMD-NJ Membership Secretary Lisa A. Intili; SMD-NJ Counselor Michael T. Bates, Esq.; Bound Brook Branch Manager Cindy Mangel; and Bound Brook Librarian Mary Nelson stand with the newly donated General Society of Mayflower Descendants historical reference collection.

On January 10, SCLSNJ's Bound Brook Memorial Library branch became the newest recipient location of the General Society of Mayflower Descendants (GSMD) historical reference collection.

"For the past 35 years, we have gifted libraries and historical societies throughout the state with this collection," said Jack Idenden, Jr., SMD-NJ Governor. "Today we join in partnership with the Bound Brook Memorial Library branch and in doing so, Somerset County now has a collection of our Silver Books, Mayflower Families in Progress booklets, and other Mayflower publications. We want our communities to use and access these otherwise unattainable resources."

The Bound Brook branch will be the only location in Somerset County to maintain a complete collection of these important research materials.

"The Silver Books – also known as the "Five Generations Project" or "Mayflower Families through Five Generations" – and "Mayflower Families in Progress" booklets are invaluable as genealogical research tools. They are the only officially sanctioned source for approved lineages for the descendants of the Pilgrims who traveled on the Mayflower in 1620. Fifty passengers are known to have living descendants and the Silver Books cover the twenty-five families that left American descendants. We look forward to assisting patrons from throughout Somerset County who hope to connect their ancestry to a traveler on the Mayflower and consequently, assisting the SMD-NJ to increase their membership," said Mary C. Nelson, adult services librarian at SCLSNJ's Bound Brook Memorial Library branch.

GSMD meticulously investigates primary records that substantiate the identity of individuals and families that descend from the Pilgrims who traveled on the Mayflower in 1620.

"Every source is checked and rechecked by editors, researchers using reviewed land records, probates, as well as many other genealogical resources – all to ensure accuracy for each individual and each generation," continued Idenden.

Learn more about GSMD at themayflowersociety.org or search SCLSNJ's collections at catalog.SCLSNJ.org. To schedule a one-on-one appointment to explore the Mayflower reference collection, email Mary Nelson at mnelson@sclibnj.org.
